Numbers in the top row of tables are the number of final rooms for the corresponding columns; numbers in the leftmost column of tables are the number of rooms for the corresponding rows; the section indicates the number of rounds, but this is also put in the top-leftmost cell.. If a cell of a table reads $k, x\%$, that means that one is very unlikely to break with fewer than k) points, very unlikely not to break with more than k points, and has a $x\%$ chance of breaking with exactly k points.
